Simon Spiro is a Yeshiva-educated, ordained Cantor who brings 40 years' experience serving congregations around the world. Raised in a Ger Chasidic family and fully fluent in many modalities of Jewish life, he has taught cantorial classes throughout Europe, North America and Israel, and he is recognized by colleagues as one of the foremost Cantors alive today.

A leading recording artist, Cantor Simon is featured in Yiddish Theater albums, and his Traditional Cantorial Favorites is one of the top selling CDs in this genre of music. Many of his compositions have entered the repertoire of synagogue music throughout the world.

Cantor Simon is known as "The British Jazz Singer" for his dual careers in Cantorial and popular music. He has worked with, among others, Elton John, Faith Hill, Sheena Easton, Cliff Richard, Neil Sedaka and Shania Twain; he has had hit singles on Israeli and British pop charts, and has twice sung in the United Kingdom's "Song for Europe Eurovision Finals." He played the lead in Phantom of the Opera, and as an entertainer he has toured around the world with Redd Buttons, Marvin Hamlisch and Joan Rivers.
